Human security: Report of the Secretary-General (A/64/701)

English, French & Spanish: <http://www.un.org/Docs/journal/asp/ws.asp?m=A/64/701>

The Secretary-General has issued a report on Human Security (A/64/701). The report is issued pursuant to paragraph 143 of the 2005 World Summit Outcome (A/RES/60/1). The report summary notes that: It takes stock of discussions on human security, its various definitions and its relationship to State sovereignty and the responsibility to protect. The report also outlines the principles and the approach for advancing human security and its application to the current priorities of the United Nations. Key human security initiatives undertaken by Governments, regional and subregional intergovernmental organizations, as well as the organizations and bodies of the United Nations system, are presented as examples of the reach of this important concept and its growing acceptance. The report concludes by identifying the core elements and the added value of human security and provides a set of recommendations as a follow-up to the above-mentioned commitment contained in the World Summit Outcome.

International Donors' Conference Towards a New Future for Haiti

<http://www.haiticonference.org/>

A ministerial conference was held at the United Nations in New York on March 31, 2010. Co-hosted by the United States and the United Nations, and organized with the collaboration of several Member States, the goal of the conference was to mobilize international support for the development needs of Haiti in an effort to lay the foundation for Haiti's long-term recovery.

The Biotechnology Initiative

English: <http://www.un.org/en/globalissues/biotechnology/>

French: <http://www.un.org/fr/globalissues/biotechnology/>

Spanish: <http://www.un.org/es/globalissues/biotechnology/>

The revolution in the life sciences has been progressing for several decades. But it has now moved into a new phase. New opportunities and challenges are emerging, and these warrant the close attention of the international community. Developments in biology, information technology, and the physical and engineering sciences are now coming together to spawn new inter-disciplinary areas in the life sciences. Almost limitless possibilities for new applications of biotechnology in health, agriculture, energy, industry, and the environment are opening up, but there are also new safety, security and ethical concerns. It is on this basis that a new Biotechnology Initiative has been developed at the UN Secretariat. The programme is coordinated by the Strategic Planning Unit of the Executive Office of the Secretary-General. These web pages aim to provide information to a global audience about the work of the Biotechnology Initiative, and also give objective summaries of the various technologies, their applications in key sectors, and the policy and ethical issues that relate to them.

Clearing the Waters: A focus on Water Quality Solutions (UNEP)

The publication addresses the urgency of controlling pollution and preserving water quality around the world. The past few decades have focused on the importance of water quantity in meeting basic human and ecosystem needs for water. Water quality is as important as water quantity for satisfying human and environmental needs, and yet has received far less investment, scientific support, and public attention.

Facts for Live: Fourth edition (UNICEF)

<http://www.factsforlifeglobal.org/resources/factsforlife-en-full.pdf>

Almost 9 million children died in 2008 from preventable illnesses (pneumonia, diarrhea, malaria, measles and AIDS) before reaching their 5th birthday. This edition has new sections and chapters, such as Newborn Health and Child Protection.

International labour migration: A rights-based approach (ILO)

http://www.ilo.org/public/english/protection/migrant/download/rights\_based\_approach.pdf

Summary:

http://www.ilo.org/public/english/protection/migrant/download/rights\_based\_es\_en.pdf

Amid growing challenges due to the global economic crisis, this new study published by the International Labour Organization highlights the need to adopt a "rights-based approach" to provide a "fair deal" for the world's 105 million migrant workers. It examines trends in international labour migration, its impacts on origin and destination countries, and conditions of work experienced by migrant workers. The study also explores how standards can be used in the formulation and implementation of migration policies and practices.

Sochi 2014 - Report of the UNEP 2nd Expert Mission, 28-30 January 2010

At the invitation of the Government of the Russian Federation and in partnership with the Sochi 2014 Olympic Organizing Committee, a UNEP expert team undertook a mission to Sochi from 28 to 30 January 2010 to assess preparations in the lead up to the games. The mission produced a report, which was prepared on the request of the Russian government, presenting key findings and recommendations.

Sick Water? The central role of wastewater management in sustainable development a rapid response assessment (UNEP/UN-HABITAT)

Transforming wastewater from a major health and environmental hazard into a clean, safe and economically-attractive resource is emerging as a key challenge in the 21st century. This new report says some two million tons of waste, estimated to equal two or more billion tons of wastewaters being discharged daily into rivers and seas spreading disease to humans and damaging key ecosystems such as coral reefs and fisheries.

The World Book and Copyright Day, on 23 April, highlights the importance of the fight against piracy to preserve creativity. WAPO, launched in January 2010, is a web-based reference tool that provides detailed information on anti-piracy activities worldwide.

Human Rights

Human Rights Dimension of Poverty in Afghanistan (OHCHR)

http://www2.ohchr.org/SPdocs/Countries/AF/PovertyReport\_30032010.doc

Patronage, corruption, impunity and over-emphasis on short-term security issues rather than targeted long-term development are exacerbating the already dire poverty affecting more than two-thirds of all Afghans, according to a report published by the office of the UN High Commissioner for Human Rights. The report paints an alarming picture of a population in deep economic distress eight years after the 2002 Bonn Agreement promised a new beginning after decades of conflict. Despite an estimated injection of some USD 35 billion during the period 2002-2009, some nine million Afghans (36 percent of the population) are believed to live "in absolute poverty" and a further 37 percent live only slightly above the poverty line.
