

To highlight the global plight of human trafficking

Not My Life

Not My Life is the first documentary film to depict the horrifying and dangerous practice of human trafficking and modern slavery on a global scale. Filmed on five continents over a period of four years, it unveils the many faces of trafficking and tells their haunting stories. "What kind of society cannibalizes its own children?" asks director Robert Bilheimer. "Can we do these sorts of things on such a large scale and still call ourselves human in any meaningful sense of the term"

Supported by the United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime (UNODC), United Nations Children's Fund (UNICEF) and the United Nations Global Initiative to Fight Human Trafficking (UN.GIFT), the documentary explores the issue of trafficking from different perspectives, forced labour in Africa; street begging and garbage picking in India; sexual trafficking in the United States and Southeast Asia; and various forms of child enslavement and abuse in both North and South America.

Martina Hanke has represented UNODC in Brussels since the beginning of 2011. Before coming to Brussels, she worked at UNODC HQ in Vienna supporting the Office in partnership building and resource mobilisation with a range of bilateral donors, international financial institutions and the European Union. Before joining UNODC, Ms. Hanke worked for the International Fund for Agricultural Development (IFAD) in Rome.

To support the anti-trafficking efforts of the European Union, the UN Office on Drugs and Crime (UNODC), the UN Office of the High Commissioner for Human Rights (OHCHR), the UN High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR), the UN Children's Fund (UNICEF), the International Labour Organisation (ILO) and the UN Entity for Gender Equality and the Empowerment of Women (UN Women) have come together to advocate for adherence with UN and international standards and influence trafficking legislation and policy.

In 2011, the European Union adopted a Directive to prevent and combat trafficking in human beings and protect its victims. Member States are now required to transpose the provisions of the Directive into their national legislation. In order to provide guidance to Member States during this transposition process, UNODC, OHCHR, UNHCR, UNICEF, ILO and UN Women have produced a legal commentary of the Directive with a human rights-based approach. The Joint UN Commentary puts human rights at the centre of all the efforts, and specifically highlights the child and gender dimensions of trafficking. Based on relevant international and regional standards, the Joint UN Commentary provides guidance to policy-makers and legislators in EU Member States on key articles of the Directive, and makes recommendations for the transposition and implementation of the Directive.
